Weekly Project Progress

Last week I developed UI for shopping list page, where a new list can be created and the already created lists are displayed. Have hardcoded the content for each list.

 Also, added layout component which helps to share content across all pages. By the end of this week, I intend to make significant progress by completing the backend for the app.

Thing most proud of – Using MUI helped in developing the user interface pretty quickly. I could utilize grid in MaterialUI which helped in the layout of shopping lists
